C. with great armfuls of flowers and at each station thereafter the delegates were royally saluted with music and flowers. Six bands were in Newport at the time and were lavish with their music. THE MAGIC CITY.

The magical city of Gary, Ind., is nearing completion.

Less than two years ago the site of Gary was an endless expanse of sand dunes, now it is a thriving city with a population of 25,000. Gary has gas, electric lights, telephones, sewerage, paved streets, and all other improvements to make it a model city of the United States. The streets are 80 and 100 feet wide and the street car system, still in course of construction, will be equipped with pay-as-you-enter cars. The town has a magnificent hotel, a daily newspaper and 2,700 brick houses.

This is the model city constructed by the Indiana Steel Company, at Gary, Ind. Six trunk lines connect the city with Chicago on the west and all points on the east. The shipping facilities on Lake Michigan are the best to be had. Everything was built according to plan and with magical speed. There are no saloons or dives.

It was for the Indiana Steel Company of Gary that the General Electric Company a year ago constructed and shipped the largest induction motor in the world. This mammoth machine of 6,000 horse-power will be used to drive a rolling mill.
